

American Pilgrims coronavirus query response:

Thank you for contacting American Pilgrims about the coronavirus (COVID-19). We can offer neither medical nor travel advice. We will suggest that you consult official and reliable sources for information. Among official and reliable sources would be:

The COVID-19 pages at NIH and CDC.

<https://www.nih.gov/health-information/coronavirus>

<https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/index.html>

The U.S. Embassy in Spain:

<https://es.usembassy.gov> and then an internal search on “coronavirus”.

The European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control:

<https://www.ecdc.europa.eu/en/novel-coronavirus-china>

The U.S. State Department’s COVID-19 Travel Alert page:

<https://travel.state.gov/content/travel/en/traveladvisories/ea/novel-coronavirus-hubei-province--china.html>

The World Health Organization:

<https://www.who.int/emergencies/diseases/novel-coronavirus-2019>

WHO map of confirmed cases:

<https://experience.arcgis.com/experience/685d0ace521648f8a5beeeee1b9125cd>

We would suggest doing a general search (like Google) on <spain coronavirus> and in the result, seeking out official and reliable sources.

We would also point out that the CDC estimates that between 16,000 and 41,000 people have died of the “ordinary” flu in the U.S. this flu season. <https://www.cdc.gov/flu/about/burden/preliminary-in-season-estimates.htm>. We mention that to offer some perspective.

Stay informed and make informed decisions. Do not forward unofficially or unreliably sourced information. Wash your hands – thoroughly and often! Safe travels!
